INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - AFTERNOON

Static shot of a door, boxes are stacked around.

The door opens, RILEY (22) walks through the door with a box labeled KITCHEN, she walks off frame.

RILEY
(phone to her ear on her shoulder)
Yea-yeah, well, Peggy better mind her business. Jan was wrongfully terminated! I mean-no yeah I just got in-

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM - NIGHT

Riley is sitting on the couch eating Ramen with her hair tied up in her towel with her legs crossed on the sofa. She is watching some kinda of reality TV, she rolls her eyes to it.

(to herself)
Should I have coffee?

She shrugs, gets up and walks off screen.

BEEP of coffee maker.

Riley leans against the counter and watches it.

(to herself)
This is a bad idea.
Oh, the show.

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Riley walks back to the couch and flops down again.

KNOCK.

Riley looks at the door, then out her window, thinking face on.

Riley shrugs and stands up.

She opens the door.

INT. APARTMENT BUILDING HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS

Riley walks out into the hallway looking around then settles on the big long box leaned against the wall.

RILEY
Huh, big box.

The label has her name and address on it.

RILEY (cont'd)
I guess you're mine.

She grabs the side of the object and heaves. It's incredibly heavy. She drags it backward into her apartment, the corner of the box snagging her "WELCOME" doormat.

The mat bunches up and gets pulled inside along with her and the box as she pushes it into the apartment.

The hallway is empty and silent.

One. Two. Three.

The doormat is suddenly thrown back out into the hallway, landing perfectly in front of the door. Door closes.

RILEY'S APARTMENT - CONTINUOUS

Riley looks at the box, Shrugs.

She opens it and finds a large object wrapped in a heavy, dusty cloth.

A tag is tied to the twine:
To: My shining star
From: Mom

She pulls the cloth away to reveal an ornate vintage frame.

The glass is covered by a piece of black poster board taped firmly to the edges.

A second note is taped to the center of the black board:
So proud of you, Riley! Every time you look in this, remember how far you've come.
Love, Mom.

Riley smiles.

She stands the mirror up on the wall. It's dusty. The black Duct Tape.is starting to fray.

She steps back to admire the frame.

She pulls out her phone.

RILEY
(Into phone)
Mom! It’s beautiful. Where did you even find this?

MOM (V.O.)
(Through phone)
Right?! This little thrift shop on the corner. The man practically gave it to me! I saw that frame and just thought of your new living room.

RILEY
It’s perfect! I love it!

MOM (V.O.)
Great! Well, I have work in the morning.

RILEY
Okay mom.

MOM (V.O.)
You should get some rest too, honey.

The coffee maker BEEPS from the kitchen.

RILEY
Yeah.. I will, thanks mom. Love you.

MOM (V.O.)
I love you too. Goodnight.

RILEY
Goodnight.

Riley hangs up and smiles into the phone.

The coffee maker BEEPS again.

Riley walks to the kitchen, walking off frame, leaving the mirror centered and alone.

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

Riley is fixing up her coffee. It's quiet except for the TV still audible in the background.

She walks back out to the mirror mug in hand.

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Riley returns, sipping her coffee, she turns the TV off and plays some upbeat home music.

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM - CONTINUOUS

She walks to the mirror and grabs the edge of the poster board's tape.

She peels it off.

Riley stands there, mug in hand.
In the mirror, the mirror is black.

(joking)
oh no.. the mirror.
it's broken.

A second later.

In the reflection, Riley peels the board off in the mirror.

Riley freezes.

She tilts her head.

Three seconds later.

The reflection tilts its head.

RILEY (cont'd)
(A dying laugh)
What the...

She smiles wider.

She does a peace sign.

She waits.

The reflection does the peace sign.

She does a little dance move.

She watches her reflection perform it.

The lighting is still warm, the music is upbeat.

She finishes her coffee and puts the mug down.

The reflection does the same.

She does a spin and poses like she can fool it.

The reflection does it back.

INT. RILEY'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM

Riley turns the music off.

The reflection behind her does the same.

Riley walks back up to the mirror and stands there.

Waiting for "her" to do the same.

RILEY
Okay.. me.. I got to go to bed.

Riley waves at herself and stops.

She waits for the reflection to stop too.

Okay Google, Turn off the lights.

Riley's lights turn off but the reflection's light still pours some light into the room.

Then the light goes out.

Okay. Night night!

Riley turns and start to walk away.

The reflection doesn't, it watches her go. For longer then 3 seconds.

RILEY (O.S)
Wait.

Riley freezes as she hears her own voice come from behind her.

RILEY (O.S) (cont'd)
(whispers right into the back of her neck)
It's my turn now.
