INT. APARTMENT - NIGHT

Mike walks into the apartment and sees his roommate.

Alaska is making out with a random guy.

MIKE Sorry.

ALASKA
Mike!

Mike runs out the door. Starts to walk away.

ALASKA (cont'd)
Mike! Wait! Please, it's not what it looks like!

Mike keeps walking.

MIKE
How is that not-

ALASKA
Sorry, its just-

Mike turns around.

MIKE
What! that man broke into our apartment and you just FELL into his lap, onto his lips!

Alaska closes the door to the apartment.

The hallway seems so small now.

ALASKA
S-Sorry?

MIKE
Sorry? sorry?! get it! You are "sorry".

ALASKA
I dont, i dont know what you want me to say?

MIKE
I want you, I want... Wait, why the fuck do I need to tell you what I want?

ALASKA
because they are your wants!

MIKE
I wanted you!

ALASKA
I-I know.

MIKE
I want to touch the skin on your face..

ALASKA
Mike...

MIKE
I want to.. you know, touch..

ALASKA
Mike, we.. I.. can't.

MIKE
Yeah.. you said that.

ALASKA
Then why did you come back tonight? You said you needed space.

MIKE
I wanted to see if you meant it. If the distance was actually killing you the way it’s killing me. But I guess you found a pretty solid distraction.

ALASKA
It was a mistake! A stupid, meaningless-

MIKE
Don't call him meaningless.

Mike points a finger at her.

MIKE (cont'd)
That makes it worse. If he’s meaningless, then you just blew up whatever was left of us for nothing.

Alaska throws her hands to the side.

ALASKA
There wasn't an "us" to blow up, Mike! You made sure of that when you walked out yesterday!

Mike steps closer.

MIKE
That was this morning! And that's because every time I looked at you, I felt like I was drowning and you were just watching from the shore.

ALASKA
I was drowning too! You just never looked up long enough to see it.

MIKE
I confessed like last night.

Alaska looks down at the silly apartment carpet pattern between them.

MIKE (cont'd)
So what happens now? You go back inside? Go back to him?

ALASKA
No. He’s leaving. I’m telling him to leave.

MIKE
It doesn't matter if he stays or goes, Alaska. The door's already open.

ALASKA
Technically it's closed.

Mike turns around, pops his collar up and starts walking again, not looking back this time.

ALASKA (cont'd)
Mike! Where are you going?

MIKE
I literately don't know!

The door closes behind him as I walks with purpose.